ON THE MOVE

Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP welcomes Kimberly D. Jaimez as a partner

Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP added former federal prosecutor Kimberly D. Jaimez as a partner, expanding its litigation practice in Los Angeles.

Jaimez, who was an assistant U.S. attorney in the Central District's criminal division, will specialize in corporate investigations, government enforcement, general litigation and white collar defense.

"What stood out about Pillsbury was that in addition to being a full service, bi-coastal firm with Chambers ranked practices, it is also known for its collegiality and collaboration," Jaimez said. "It just seemed like a really good fit and it's also a good opportunity to grow my practice."

"I am also very excited about getting involved in corporate investigations, particularly proactive internal investigations that are happening and addressing #MeToo and bias issues," Jaimez added. "I am excited to get involved with those, not just because of my investigative background, but also because it is an area of interest."

Jaimez looks forward to leveraging her seven years with the U.S. Attorney's Office to represent clients in health care fraud matters. She was also heavily involved in the office's diversity and equity working group.

Jaimez investigated and prosecuted international money laundering schemes, health care fraud, embezzlement, wire and mail fraud, drug conspiracies, cyber extortion and blackmail matters.

One of her most notable cases was a multiyear investigation and indictment of the founder of 1-800-Get-Thin for a $250 million fraudulent billing scheme involving fake sleep studies and unnecessary lap band surgeries. ■
